Chris Ndeti is described as a dynamic and versatile female acoustic rock/soul performer and songwriter. Ms. Ndeti has always had a love for music and has sung since an early age. She started playing the violin at age 11 and picked up guitar in her teens.

An alumna of Georgia College & State University in Milledgeville Georgia, Ndeti earned her Bachelor of Music Therapy. During that time she performed in an avant-garde jazz ensemble, orchestral string ensemble, and women's choir. She credits developing her signature powerhouse vocals those undergraduate years. Chris' vocals range and timbre are well recognized for being able to deliver grace, finesse, and spot on grit for her delivery of blues, funk, and rock.

Ms. Ndeti currently engages full-time with Veterans as a clinical professional therapist. She was featured alongside fellow Music Therapist in the 2014 August/September issue of Augusta Magazine in the article : "The Medicine of Music".

She was named Augusta Magazines 2014's Best Female Vocalist later that year. Her community contributions include instructing music at the Jessye Norman School of the Arts, Boy & Girls Club of Augusta, Aiken SPCA, Augusta National Kidney Foundation, and Augusta Canal National Heritage Area.

Ndeti co-founded and is frontwoman of the funk-rock band MAMA SAYS. The band headlined the 33rd Arts in the Heart of Augusta Festival and has performed as every year since. In 2012 they opening the Annual Blind Willie McTell Blues Festival held in Thompson, Georgia.

Ms. Ndeti was a guest performer with the Georgia Regents University (Augusta University) Jazz Ensemble with nationally former artist in residence Wycliffe Gordon. She was invited to open the 6th Annual Julius Daniels Blues Festival in Denmark, SC and invited back with MAMA SAYS to headline the festival.

For the past five years Ms. Ndeti has had an artist endorsement with Seagull Guitars by Godin and continues to receive high accolades and reviews for her solo and collaborative works.
